

AN ENDORSEMENT OF CLEVELAND.

Massachusetts Republicans take a different view of the Republican victory last Tuesday from their goldbug friends out this way. The Boston Advertiser, a straight-out Republican newspaper, says the Republican majority was an endorsement of Cleveland's policy. He convened Congress in special session to repeal the bullion purchase clause of the Sherman act. Though the Democrats had control of Congress they could not carry out the President's policy in consequence of the defection of the silver men had it not been for the Republicans. Nineteenth of the Republicans supported the President, while only fifty-five per cent of the Democrats did so. It was therefore the duty of every citizen who believed in honest money and in upholding the President to give the party which sustained him in the Senate and House, his support at the polls. The Advertiser therefore argues that the Republican victory was an endorsement of President Cleveland, to whose firmness, and the Republicans in Congress, the country is indebted for the repeal of the Sherman act.

The argument of the Advertiser is logical. In the special session of Congress 112 out of 126 Republicans in the House, and 26 Republicans out of 37 in the Senate, sustained the President and voted to carry out his recommendation to Congress. It was therefore an endorsement of the President to vote for the party that gave him its almost unanimous vote in Congress.

LARGELY A FAMILY AFFAIR.

The distribution of offices in the departments at Washington is said to be largely a family affair. Politics has very little to do with the matter, and in some instances efficiency is not considered. Heads of departments, chiefs of bureaus, Senators and Representatives, individually run the public service as though it was created expressly for their benefit. A special Congressional investigating committee finds that of 17,699 employees in the departments at Washington, no less than 5,610 have relatives at the same time drawing government salaries. Five officials have each eight relatives in the service with themselves; twenty-six have five each, ninety-six have four each; two hundred and seventy-nine have three each, and so on to the end of the list. Several cases are given by the committee where nearly entire families, parents, brothers and sisters are holding positions and drawing pay from the government.

The question has been raised whether these facts are telling for or against reform. The sportsmen, who want the patronage apportioned among politicians, charge that the system injures the party, while others take a different view of the matter and say the service is better than if the places were given to professional politicians wholly unqualified to fill them.

GOLD AND SILVER EXPORTS AND IMPORTS.

A statement of the exports and imports of gold and silver at New York for the ten months ending November 1, 1893, is published. The gold exports were $58,288,543, and the gold imports $70,123,078, showing a net loss of about $12,000,000. The silver imports were $2,183,864, and the silver exports $26,326,333; excess of exports over imports $24,142,469.

This shows that there is nothing in the cry raised about coining American silver exclusively at the mints. We are exporting about thirteen times as much silver as we import and if the mints were open for its coinage, all imported silver bullion coined here would have to be invested here, as American coins are not a legal tender in foreign countries and would be of less value in those countries than the bullion before it was coined.

A POLITICAL SPARRING MATCH.

Commenting on last Tuesday's political bout the Silver State says:

The right wing of the Wall street party had a little friendly bout with the left wing last Tuesday. A little sparring exhibition to attract the attention of the crowd while both were picking the people's pockets. But in the excitement of the play the right wing dropped its boxing gloves and gave the left several black eyes and bloody noses, and now claims that it was intended as a match to a finish and in dead earnest. These allies will be a little more careful in the future or their ring master may interfere to keep them from hurting each other and crippling their resources and thwarting the common purpose.

SECRETARY CARLISLE had an informal conference with Assistant Treasurer Jordan and several New York bankers a day or two ago, and it is believed a plan was suggested to relieve the treasury of further trouble until Congress does something. The success of the plan requires the co-operation of New York bankers, and it was suggested that no order will be issued for the coinage of silver dollars to obtain the use of the seigniorage.

Ten Russian convicts arrived in San Francisco on whaling vessels, which picked them up at sea. They escaped from a penal colony and the disposition to be made of them is perplexing the authorities at Washington. They are at large but under surveillance.

What Stevens Says About Gresham.

Augusta, Me., November 11.—John L. Stevens, late United States Minister to Hawaii, read Secretary Gresham's report carefully this evening and said: "The position to which Secretary Gresham has seen fit to commit himself is so extraordinary, so void of a real foundation of truth, so calumnious of the living and dead, that I have no extended reply to make at this time. I prefer to let time and events and history decide as to the issue the Secretary has raised against the Provisional Government and the aspirations he saw fit to cast on the deceased Captain of the Boston, the officers under his command and myself. The way the United States Minister and the officers of the Boston discharged their responsibilities at Honolulu in January last was more than covered by Secretary Bayard's instructions, approved by President Cleveland on July 12, 1887. Secretary Gresham has allowed his party prejudices and animosities to raise an issue, which Congress, after a full sifting of the facts, and an intelligent opinion will determine justly."

Sir Charles Dilke's Opinion of Brazilian Affairs.

LONDON, November 10.—A rumor that England has suggested to the government at Washington intervention in Brazil was quoted to several members of the government in the House of Commons to-night. Lord Rosebery, Foreign Secretary, was nowhere to be found. The Ministers inquired of denied any knowledge that such a suggestion had been made, but they practically admitted that communications regarding Brazil have been passing between the two governments.

Sir Charles Dilke, the best extra Ministerial authority (he was Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs under Gladstone from 1880 to 1882), thinks it extremely improbable that such a suggestion could emanate from England, but that it is likely that Washington cannot well refrain from interference.

Searching for Lost Hunters.

COLUMBIA, Wash., November 11.—Lieutenant Clough Overton, Fourth Cavalry, passed here this morning in command of a small party, who were going to hunt up the son of General Carlin, who with a company of friends are supposed to be lost near the headwaters of the Clearwater. The hunting party left Kendrick September 18th, to be absent six weeks. Nothing has been heard of them since. Lieutenant Overton said he had three expert snow-shoers, and he would endeavor to reach the heart of the Bitter Root mountains before the heavy snows fall.

Uncle Sam and Honduras.

SAN SALVADOR, Salvador, November 11.—The United States warship Alliance is at La Libertad awaiting orders. Minister Young has telegraphed to the Honduras Minister of Foreign Affairs asking him if his Government accepts the responsibility for the act of the Commander of the Port of Amapala, when he fired upon the Pacific Mail steamer Costa Rica, though she was flying the American flag.

Chinese Butchery.

PORTLAND, Or., November 11.—Gong Fa, a Chinese woman, was found dead in the gutter at the corner of Second and Pine streets, only a block from the police station, and immediately under an arc light. Her throat was slashed in a fearful manner, the head being almost severed from the trunk, and under her body lay a huge knife more than a foot in length, while a stream of warm blood flowed down the gutter.

French Amnesty.

LONDON, November 11.—M. Henri Rochefort confirms the news regarding the amnesty said to have been granted him and others of the French Government. M. Rochefort said the amnesty was a mere political expediency. He doubted if he would leave London, where he can do much more than in Paris.

Comments on Gresham's Letter.

New York, November 11.—All the papers comment editorially upon Secretary Gresham's letter to the President regarding the Hawaiian situation. There is a wide range of opinion, some of the leading journals upholding the Administration's views of the affair, while others denounce it in unmeasured terms.

Unemployed Going East.

COLUMBIA, November 11.—A squad of eighty-five of the unemployed visited Colton early this morning and after spending the day departed this evening over the Southern Pacific for Eastern points. The Colton and San Bernardino people as usual furnished them abundant food.

Hark, the sculptor, who fashioned the Montana statue of Justice according to the figure of Ada Behan, the actress, has been sued for a divorce. His wife alleges that he does not support her.

The Board of Education of Sonoma county, California, has published resolutions condemning the Grand Jury. The Board says the jury purported to have made an investigation, but did not do so.

The express train on the Illinois Central Railroad was held up by robbers at Mayfield, eight miles from Cairo. Five masked men entered the express car, took two packages said to contain $1,500, jumped from the car and made their escape.

Secretary Gresham's letter to the President on Hawaiian affairs is published. It is dated October 18th and takes strong ground against annexation. He says the Queen would not have been deposed had it not been for the landing of marines from the United States steamer Boston and the Provisional Government has been maintained through fear of the military power of the United States.

The Grand Jury at Kalispell, Mont., returned six indictments against Sheriff Gangner for embezzlement and perjury, two against Court Clerk Swaney for embezzlement, three against Assessor Graves for embezzlement and misconduct, two against Jailer McGowan for embezzlement and carelessness in allowing prisoners to escape, eight against County Commissioners for misconduct in office in allowing numerous bills in excess of the amounts that should have been paid.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with neuralgia and rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O., had five large fever sores on his leg and doctors said he was incurable. One bottle of Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store.

Cherokee Strip Indian Names.

In civilizing the Indian into a plug hat and English terminology we all too quickly forget to perpetuate him in the geographical nomenclature of the land he once so graphically christened. Of the seven new counties in the Cherokee strip, but one bears an Indian name. The others have names which are wholly commonplace, which are not associated with any incident to give them meaning, and which partake not in the slightest degree of the local tone and color of a region which has a rude but picturesque history and abounds in romantic traditions which ought to be preserved in the names of its towns and counties. —Kansas City Star.

"But if he did wish to do it, could he?" "Yes, in two minutes." "Well, then, the colt wouldn't be 2 years old, would he?" The father was kind of floored and carried the youngster to bed and made him say his prayers. —New York Recorder.

ROTATION OF CROPS.

One of the Most Important Principles of Agriculture.

The system of rotation is one of first and most important principles of general husbandry, and it cannot be omitted without manifest disadvantage and loss. The practice is one of quite modern date, although it was partially made use of in Flanders and some other highly cultivated countries of Europe a century ago.

The place of rotation was formerly supplied by naked fallows. This practice consists in giving the soil an occasional or periodical rest, in which the crop is taken off and the soil is allowed to produce what it pleases, or nothing at all, for one or more years, after which time it will have become refreshed and invigorated for the production of its usual crops. This system, it will be perceived, implies the loss of the income from the soil for a certain period of time, and can be tolerated only when the farmer possesses more land than can be cultivated.

Modern agricultural science has detected, in part, at least, the true theory of the necessity for rotation. It has been discovered that every crop robs the soil of a portion of its elements, and that no two dissimilar crops abstract these elements or their compounds from the soil in the same proportions. It is not only necessary that these elements be present in the soil, but they must be present in precisely the form adapted to the wants of the growing plant. That they exist in every soil, in some condition, to an amount large enough to afford the quantity required by the crop, can hardly be doubted, but that they are all in a form to supply the full demand of a luxuriant crop is probably true only of such as are found, under favorable circumstances of season and climate, to have produced the largest and best crops.

If a succession of any given crops are gathered and carried off the land without occasional manuring they will be found to gradually diminish in quantity until they reach a point when they will scarcely pay the expenses of cultivation. This is true of all crops and soil, however naturally fertile the latter may be, unless they receive an occasional, or annual dressing from the overflow of enriching floods, or are artificially irrigated with water holding in solution the necessary fertilizing matters. Old meadows, or mowing lands filled with natural or uncultivated grasses, etc., are no exceptions to this rule, for though they part with a portion of their annual crop in the hay, which is removed and not returned as manure, and by a partial rest or pasturage appear to sustain their original fertility, yet, if the true character of the various plants which they produce be carefully observed (all of which are indiscriminately embraced under the general head of grass and hay), it will be found that they gradually change from year to year, and while some predominate in one season, others take their place a second season, and are in turn supplanted by others in an unceasing round of rotation. Another illustration of natural rotation is seen in the succession of forest trees that shoot up on the same soil to take the place of such of their predecessors as have decayed or been cut down. Thus the pine and other conifers are frequently found to usurp the place of the oak, the chestnut and other deciduous trees.

Many choice bottom lands and others well supplied by nature with all the materials of fertility have by a long continued cropping been reduced to a condition of comparative sterility. Yet it will be found in the progress of this exhaustion, that after the soil has ceased to give an adequate return of one crop, as of wheat, corn, etc., it will still yield abundantly of another crop. Nature is constantly, silently at work renovating the land and producing these changes in the soil which enable it to contribute to the production of vegetable matter. In the process of natural disintegration enough lime, or potash, or phosphoric acid may be made available for the requirements of one crop, but these elements may be the ones principally used by that crop and if the same crop follows in quick succession there will be a deficiency, yet if a different crop succeeds there may be found sufficient of all the materials to fully mature it. Another crop succeeds it and demands materials in forms and proportions not used by either of the preceding crops, and by the time it is desired to plant the first crop again the soil contains the food necessary for its growth in available form and sufficient quantity for a remunerative return. Thus we see one benefit of rotation.

Another prominent advantage of rotation is in enabling such crops to receive the benefit of manure as cannot receive it without injury if applied directly upon them. Thus wheat and other white grains are liable to overgrowth and rust and mildew if manured with fresh dung; yet this may be applied without harm to corn, roots and most hoed crops, and when tempered with one season's exhaustion and the various changes which take place in the soil, it is a safe medium for the supply of plant food to the smaller cereals.

Another benefit of rotation is that it brings the land into hoed crops at proper intervals, clearing it of troublesome weeds which may infest it. And still another advantage may be found in cutting off the appropriate food for worms and insects, which in course of time, having a full supply of their necessary food, and especially if left undisturbed, will oftentimes become so numerous as to seriously interfere with the growing crops. Change of crops and exposure to frosts with the change of cultivation which rotation necessitates will seriously affect their numbers and may entirely destroy them.

It is because elements, essential to vegetable growth, have been abstracted, not that others hurtful to it have been added by preceding crops, that rotation is made necessary. From all that has been learned on the subject, either from science or practice, two general principles may be advanced as a guide to the farmer in his course of cropping:

1st. Cultivate as great a variety of plants as soil, circumstances and market will justify.

2nd. Have the same, or any similar, crops follow each other at intervals as widely separated as is consistent with best interests.

It is evident that the proper system of rotation for any farmer to follow depends entirely upon his surroundings and must vary according to circumstances.

COMETS.

So Far They Have Baffled Scientists.

Professor Barnard, of the Lick Observatory, lectured in San Francisco Thursday evening. The speaker said: "Comets are bodies of gaseous matter, a little drier toward the middle than at the outside. As this middle descends toward the sun it grows brighter and a little star-like body appears and emits jets of brilliant matter, which streams out as a nebulous body and forms the tail. What before was small in dimensions extends to enormous sizes, stretching out 200,000,000 of miles. What this matter is we know not. It is supposed the tail is composed of vapor. This we are not sure of. The spectroscopic does not reveal correctly or satisfactorily what they are. Hydro-carbons are found in them. When a comet passes between the earth and a star you can see the star through the comet. You think the star is in front, when it is known positively that the star is farther away than the comet. What the nucleus is composed of we know not. No astronomer has positively seen a nucleus of a comet pass between the earth and a star. So it is not certain whether this center spot is transparent or opaque. It is supposed that the nucleus is composed of meteoric stone."

Desirable Information.

Persons desiring to preserve fruit or small vegetables for exhibition at the Midwinter Fair will be furnished the desired information by applying personally or by letter to Professor N. E. Wilson, Experiment Station, Reno. Chemists have discovered a method of preserving fruits and the smaller vegetables so that their original color and freshness will remain permanent.

IN OLDEN TIMES

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action, but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

Coroner Brown held an inquest on the body of Chas. Givan at Wadsworth. The jury composed of I. N. Farwell, C. H. Lewis, W. C. Taylor, T. L. Herman, C. W. Browning and J. A. Gregory, found that the deceased was a native of Peoria, Illinois; was twenty-one years and nine months old, that he came to his death in a railroad collision on the track of the Southern Pacific Company between Clark and Salvia stations on the 5th of November 1898, and that the collision was caused by train dispatcher William Mollen giving wrong orders.

A Protest.

FRANKTOWN, November 11, 1893.
EDITOR JOURNAL.—From reports of the doings of the County Commissioners, as published in your paper during the present week, I see that the taxpayers all over the county have been compelled to help defray the expenses of your Fourth of July celebration. Why, if Reno wants to put on airs, do not your citizens put up the costs and not force the people of the whole county to contribute for the glorification of your own town? As a taxpayer, I protest. Times are hard and how we are to raise our coming taxes is a distressing question.

Respectfully,

WASHOE.

ADAM'S NAIVETE.

A Woman Defends the First Man From Charges of Cowardice.

And the Lord said, "Hast thou eaten of the tree whereof I commanded thee thou shouldst not eat?" The man said, "The woman whom thou gavest to be with me—she gave me of the tree and I did eat." This, it has been held for centuries, was Adam's great sin, for which he and his descendants, even to the present generation, compelled to work for a living. In addition to bearing the consequences of his error Adam has been denounced through all succeeding centuries for his cowardice and lack of gallantry in trying to throw the blame upon the woman who had been given to be with him. "God's first, best gift to man."

We are glad, therefore, that even after 6,000 years of unmerited condemnation which the memory of our great progenitor has had to bear there has arisen one person who dares to speak for him. And it is all the more fortunate that that person is a woman—a member of the sex whom Adam's words, by a wrong interpretation, were held to have maligned. This person is Mrs. Caroline F. Corbin, a distinguished authoress. In her latest book she says of Adam's plea: "This is not the expression of cowardice, but of the innocent and native belief that anything which this lovely being, fresh from God's hand, proposed must be right, and right or wrong must be done. It is a trait which has come down in unbroken continuity of inheritance to the latest born of Adam's sons."

The thought is a new one, but there is not a man alive and capable of appreciating Mrs. Corbin's argument who will not endorse it. Where is there a man today, barring a few crusty old bachelors, who would not have done the same thing under like circumstances? The woman was beautiful, the apple was good, and Adam was an unsophisticated, ingenious young man unaccustomed to the little social arts and deceptions that the daughters of Mother Eve have learned from her example.

We insist that Adam is vindicated, and that Mark Twain's tears over his grave were a deserved tribute. Now, let the building of his monument proceed. And let it be recorded thereon that "he was a kind, loving and obedient husband."—Troy Times.

Small Fortune Between the Cracks.
A cigar dealer was recently compelled to move from his down town stand, which he had occupied for 35 years, because of the demolition of the old building.

He packed his belongings with many a sigh of regret. When he had got his things all out, he turned to the workmen, who were waiting to begin tearing down the building, and remarked in a rather sarcastic tone: "Well, boys, you may have all you find in this old trap."

The workmen began on the old floor, which had been worn into hollows by age. It had not been replaced since it was originally laid.

One of the men ripped up a board with his crowbar, raising a cloud of dust. When he got it out of his eyes, he saw something shiny in the crack.

He poked it up, and it proved to be a dime. Further investigation revealed the fact that the crack was lined with silver.

This was an incentive to the workmen. They pried their crowbars with remarkable energy for men poorly paid. In this instance they were amply rewarded.

In every crack of the floor silver dimes were found. Some of them bore dates of nearly half a century ago. The men gathered the coin in handfuls.

The cigar dealer, in speaking of the occurrence, said that he hadn't the slightest idea that so much money could be lost through carelessness and a poor floor even in 35 years.

"But it won't happen again," he said. "When I heard of it, I immediately gave orders to have my new store refloored with hard wood, and no cracks at my own expense."—New York Herald.

A Striking Presentation.
It is curious how future events are occasionally prefigured by some anticipatory token which, unlike presentiments and premonitory dreams, makes perhaps no impression at the time on those whom they concern.

Here is a striking example. One of Charles Dickens' sons, from some childish oddity of expression in his large, wondering eyes, was given by his father the very unique sobriquet of the "Ocean Specter," by which he was always called. The great novelist never knew of the weird significance his playfully bestowed appellation was to bear, for he himself had been nearly two years in his grave at the time his little "Ocean Specter," then a lieutenant in the royal navy, died and was buried at sea.—London Tit-Bits.

Useless Purchases.
Two eminent French gentlemen, who were great friends, used to relate an amusing story of their impetuous days. Neither fame nor fortune had come to them, but they were always hopeful. The years had weighed heavily enough upon Jules, however, for him to have become entirely bald. One day Alphonse met him with a beaming countenance and cried gayly: "What do you think, Jules! I have been buying a strong box!" "Then, Alphonse," replied Jules firmly, "I shall buy a hairbrush."—Argonaut.

George Elliot.
George Elliot suffered from melancholic moods, and from her thirtieth year had severe attacks of headache. As a child she was poor in health and extremely sensitive to terror in the night. She remained a quivering fear throughout her whole life.—New York Times.

Why She Liked Them.

Boston Woman—Because they are so cultivated, you know.—Boston Courier.

BALD HEADS!

What is the condition of yours? Is your hair dry, harsh, brittle? Does it split at the ends? Has it a lifeless appearance? Does it fall out when combed or brushed? Is it full of dandruff? Does your scalp itch? Is it dry or in a heated condition? If these are some of your symptoms be warned in time or you will become bald.

Skookum Root Hair Grower

is what you need. Its production is not an accident, but the result of scientific research. Knowledge of the diseases of the hair and scalp led to the discovery of how to treat them. "Skookum" contains neither mineral nor oil. It is not a dye, but a delicately cooling and refreshing tonic. By stimulating the follicles, it stops falling hair, cures dandruff and grows hair on bald heads.

Keep the scalp clean, healthy, and free from irritating eruptions by the use of Skookum Skin Soap. It destroys the parasite theory, which feeds on and destroys the hair.

If your druggist cannot supply you send direct to us, and we will forward prepaid, on receipt of price. Grower, $1.00 per bottle; 6 for $5.00. Soap, 50c per jar; 6 for $2.50.

CAN'T SEE ANYTHING GREEN.

A Little Boat of Emerald Hue Fooled the Cruiser and Monitor Too.

A report is about to be sent to the navy department regarding certain experiments which have been conducted in this harbor during the summer under the auspices of the torpedo station to determine upon measures to be employed by torpedo boats to escape detection with searchlights. The Cushing has been the boat in use, and much progress has been made. The torpedo boat at no time used both her boiler in steaming ahead, and consequently did not run as fast as she might.

She was tried painted in several colors but was discovered until a dark hue was used. Then she ran into the harbor before the powerful searchlights of the cruiser San Francisco and monitor Miantonomah as well as the big light at the station could detect her. She got within a few feet of each of the war vessels, and in a fine position to do great damage with her torpedoes.

On last Monday night the Cushing entered the harbor, and although both vessels were looking for her she passed completely around the island on which is the torpedo station twice without being detected. These experiments are said to be more successful than any carried on in the same line by any nation.

The green appears to be the proper color for torpedo boats. In the glare of the searchlight it is quite like water. At times it resembles the green grown rocks.—Newport Spout.

In Bu. b India the number of persons adhering to the sects of the ancient Brahmanic religions is estimated at 211,000,000. There are 167,000,000 Buddhists, 90,000,000 of 57,000,000 Mohammedans and 5,000,000 of the other pagans or native worshippers.

There was recently given in Denmark a concert (the only one) dedicated as a memorial to the victims of the Boer war. The music was composed by a Danish composer, and the proceeds were to be used for the relief of the Boer prisoners of war.

It is claimed that a British student examined, but the Police refused to let him. The police have been extremely seeking and have just found an important document, which has been taken from a considerable number of the United States. It is called himself Dr. Alkin of the Second United States Dragoon guards, and he produced, whenever asked for credentials, which was rarely the case, a conspicuously printed document signed "H. Dayard," certifying that the bearer had been appointed "medical officer and military attaché of the American embassy, at a salary of $250 per annum, terminable by six months' notice on either side."

The document had a uniform as the American Dragoon guards might be expected to be, but clothed in it he managed to captivate the fancy of several respectable ladies.

Alkin was arrested yesterday at the conclusion of a meteoric visit to Bourne-mouth. He was received in that pleasant town with distinguished honor, as he passed himself off as an inspecting officer of the royal artillery. Such was his consummate ruffianism that he actually did inspect the local artillery and, toward the coast guard, highly commending the efficiency of the latter body and promising to forward a favorable report to the Admiralty.—New York Sun's Daily Edition.

The Weakest Spot
In your whole system is, perhaps your liver. If that doesn't do its work of purifying the blood, more troubles come from it than you can remember.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery acts upon this weak spot as nothing else can. It rouses it up to healthy, natural action. By thoroughly purifying the blood, it reaches, builds up and invigorates every part of the system.

For all diseases that depend on the liver or the blood—dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness; every form of scrofula, even consumption (or lung-scrofula) in its earlier stages; and the most stubborn skin and scalp diseases, the Discovery is the only remedy so unfailing and effective that it can be guaranteed.

If it doesn't benefit or cure you have your money back.
